Part I, Line 1a:

AARP board members, officers, and key employees are provided the benefit of first-class travel on flights exceeding 5 hours when business class accommodations are not available. Directors may also use first-class travel if prior approval is obtained from the Corporate Secretary's Office due to medical reasons or for especially late-night arrival, or if approved by the Board Chair. The AARP Chief Executive Officer and AARP Board Chair are provided the benefit of first-class or business class travel on flights exceeding 90 minutes due to the extensive travel requirements of the position.

In 2023, one board member used first-class travel. All directors for AARP serve on a volunteer basis and are not compensated for their generous commitment to AARP. The officers, directors, and key employees are, however, reimbursed by AARP for travel and subsistence costs incurred in carrying out their duties. In addition, directors are reimbursed for travel and subsistence costs incurred for spouses/companions accompanying them to Association functions. The board members receive a gross-up payment to ensure there are no out-of-pocket expenses related to the income taxes for issues, including utility rates, caregiving, and work and save programs.

AARP also advances our policy agenda at the national level through advocacy that proactively addresses issues important to people 50+, including caregiving, health, saving and planning, Social Security, and age-based discrimination. Underlying our policy agenda is the in-depth research conducted by AARP, which also provides a foundation for our program development and for the information we provide on key issues affecting 50+ Americans, including, in addition to those listed above, livable communities, work and careers, and more.

AARP offers training and education programs that help people 50+ improve their lives, such as AARP Driver Safety courses and local workshops and activities on matters such as fraud prevention.

AARP also facilitates the participation of 50+ Americans in bringing about positive social change in America. Initiatives include Create the Good, which connects individuals to a network of people, tools, and time-flexible volunteer opportunities; Andrus Awards for Community Service, which recognize people who have made a difference in their AARP also communicates with members and non-members through its award-winning website, mobile apps, broadcast studio productions, social media, and various other platforms to provide information that is engaging, informative, and useful and to ensure that positive images of aging are reflected in society.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4d, Other Program Services:

Member Acquisition's work is based on the recognition that members are an essential part of AARP's ability to achieve its mission. Speaking on behalf of its tens of millions of members gives AARP significant power and reach in advocating for social change at the local, state, and national levels. Members also provide grassroots activism, volunteer work, and input into the problems faced by Americans as they age, which helps shape AARP's social change agenda. Member Acquisition seeks to retain current members and provides outreach to potential members, including the many different segments of America's diverse 50+ population.

provides significant support to its charitable affiliates. AARP

Foundation provides services for the most vulnerable part of the 50+ population, working to win back opportunity for low-income Americans 50+ with a particular focus on income, benefits, and refunds.

Experience Corps, which is part of the AARP Foundation, connects highly trained volunteers age 50 and above with disadvantaged students to tutor literacy. Legal Counsel for the Elderly provides free legal representation for low-income residents of the District of Columbia.

Wish of a Lifetime shifts how society values seniors by granting and sharing their lifelong wishes. Olders Adults Technology Services harnesses the power of technology to change the way we age.

In addition to the cash support, AARP provides significant in-kind contributions and services to its charitable affiliates.

the Code, and disclose any real or potential conflicts of interest.

Disclosures are reviewed by appropriate management (or in the case of a board member, the Board Chair, the Corporate Secretary's Office, and if necessary, the Governance Committee), and the Ethics & Compliance Office. The appropriate resolution plan is implemented (for example, recusal from participating in any deliberations and decisions relevant to the disclosure). The Ethics & Compliance Office monitors compliance (with the assistance of the Corporate Secretary's Office for board members) with these requirements and ensures proper follow-up as needed.

Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 15:

AARP considers relevant for-profit and not-for-profit data since this is the landscape in which AARP competes for talent. Establishing the appropriate compensation for positions and jobs considers external market pricing (where possible) from an independent, third-party compensation consulting firm, internal criteria, and an individual's actual performance and contribution. Internal criteria are based on a standard approach that measures the internal value of positions, including: complexity and scope of responsibility, skill set and competencies, education and experience, and the reporting relationship of the position. An individual's actual performance and contribution is measured through AARP's performance management approach and then rewarded through AARP's annual base pay merit and incentive awards programs.

For the CEO, the People, Compensation & Culture Committee, which is comprised of independent directors, engaged an independent third-party compensation consultant to review and report on the competitiveness and reasonableness of the CEO's total remuneration. Based on that report, the People, Compensation & Culture Committee recommended that the Board of Directors approve of the CEO's remuneration and after review and discussion, the independent members of the Board of Directors approved the Committee's recommendation. These deliberations and actions were recorded in the Committee and Board minutes.

For the Executive Vice Presidents (listed in Part VII), the compensation recommendations of the CEO are provided to the People, Compensation & Culture Committee together with external comparability data provided by an independent third-party compensation consulting firm. The People, Compensation & Culture Committee reviewed and approved the 2023 recommendations, and its deliberations and action were recorded in the Committee's minutes.

Part VII Supplemental Information

Provide additional information for responses to questions on Schedule R. See instructions.

Part II, Identification of Related Tax-Exempt Organizations:

Name of Related Organization:

Wish of a Lifetime

Primary Activity: Shift how society values seniors by granting/sharing lifelong wishes

Part V, Question 2, Transactions with Related Organizations

The AARP Insurance Plan is a grantor trust established by an Agreement and Declaration of Trust for the purpose of making group health insurance and other health-related products and services available to AARP, Inc. members. Agreements between AARP, Inc., AARP Services, Inc., and several insurance companies enable AARP-branded insurance products to be made available to AARP members.

At the direction of the third party insurance carriers, the Plan pays AARP, Inc. a portion of the total premiums collected for the use of its intellectual property, which is reported as royalties in the consolidated statements of activities.

Part V: Transactions with related organizations, line 2(a)-(d), row (10)

AARP and AARP Foundation, its affiliated charity, share mailing lists. AARP does not rent its mailing list to other organizations, so a fair market value of the benefit to the Foundation has not been established. The AARP list is much larger and thus presumably more valuable than the Foundation list. Moreover, the vast majority of names on the AARP Foundation list are already on the AARP list, as they are also AARP members.
